

Bible scholar, speaker, author and radio host

Radio talk show host, Jewish community leader, and author of three bestselling books, Rabbi Daniel Lapin, is president of the American Alliance of Jews and Christians. Known widely as a distinguished Bible scholar, in the early 80s he co-founded the now-legendary Orthodox congregation, Pacific Jewish Center in Los Angeles, with Michael Medved.

Rabbi Daniel Lapin has written for the Wall Street Journal, National Review, Commentary, the American Enterprise, and the Washington Times. He has spoken for hundreds of churches, synagogues, and universities as well as for Family Research Council, the U.S. Army, Harvard Law School, the Republican National Convention, Christian Coalition, and for many corporations.

President George W. Bush appointed him to a presidential commission and in April 2007 Newsweek magazine included Rabbi Lapin in its listing of the Top 50 rabbis in the United States.

Rabbi Daniel Lapin and his wife Susan are ardent boaters and reside on Mercer Island, Washington where they home schooled their seven children.

"The more things change, the more we need to depend upon those things that never change."
